Built in 1987, the monument was inaugurated by President Megawati Soekarnoputri on 14 June 2003 as a cultural symbol to immortalize the soul and spirit of Balinese people.

Favored for its great waves that is ideal for surfing adventures, the beach never failed to attract plenty of international surfers coming all the way from distanced places. It also features picturesque panorama of the Indian Ocean, the wide white sand and numerous international restaurants for after surfing.

A nature reserve and Hindu temple complex, the forest is a popular tourist attraction with over 10,000 visitors per month. Lies within the village of Padangtegal, it seeks to conserve rare plants and animals as well as to provide a natural laboratory for educational institutions.
