SEMARANG

Abandoned and antique buildings have a tendency to inspire stories. Legends, Myths, Haunted tales of the building's origin, its owners and builders. Indonesia as a whole is home to numerous historical and mystical buildings, many antique and dating back hundreds of years. One such building is Lawang Sewu which was built by the Dutch between the years 1904 and 1907 and functioned as head office for The Dutch East Indies Railway Company (Nederlandsch Indische Spoorweg Maatschappij) until 1942. During World War II, the building was used as Japanese Military Headquarters. It is located on the Tugu Muda roundabout, in Semarang, capital city of Central Java. Lawang Sewu in the Javanese language is translated to mean "a thousand doors".

"LAWANG SEWU"

also known as Gedung Batu Temple, is the oldest Chinese temple in Semarang, Central Java, Indonesia. Originally established by the Chinese Muslim explorer Zheng He (also known as Sanbao), it is now shared by Indonesians of multiple religious denominations, including Muslims and Buddhists, and ethnicities, including Chinese and Javanese.

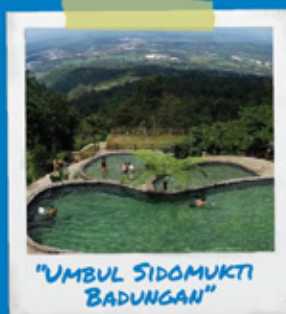

"BOROBUDUR TEMPLE"

"KARIMUN JAWA NATIONAL PARK"

Situated some 90km northwest off the northern coast of Jepara Regency in Central Java Province, the Karimunjawa Archipelago is a chain of breathtaking coral-fringed islands replete with underwater splendor secluded in the open Java Sea. Here, the white beaches are sublime, swimming is wonderful, snorkeling is extraordinary, and the pace of life relaxed as a destination defined by coconut palms and turquoise seas.

"UMBUL SIDOMUKTI BADUNGAN"

Located on the foot of Mount Ungaran, the Umbul Sidomukti was specially built to appreciate the picturesque contours of the landscape in Semarang Atas. Featuring a military grade outbound obstacle course, it is sure to challenge even the bravest souls. Fly across a valley over a hundred metres apart on a zipline, or crawl your way on a rope bridge hanging thirteen stories above the valley floor. If you're looking for a more relaxing alternative to enjoy the landscape, take a dip in the spring water stone pools right across the cafeteria. Made up of ascending layers, it creates a natural viewpoint of the city below.
